This is a three-element presentation: Twenty-three color illustration pages, video,

I'm not interested in being a scholar or philosopher. If I took an IQ test I would score low. But I have a high level of understanding and quality. I've applied that to understanding life; keeping my two feet on the ground and using the principles of life and how to get the job of living done well, I cleared a path through all theories, perspectives, and philosophies to nothing except crisp clear mechanical facts. After 25 years of research and testing, Achievement Through Wholeness principles for you to confirm for yourself, so you can act on them with your own conviction. I have put forth the best I have. I am learning it along with you. Updates are sure to come. Desktop publishing is available for answers and refinements. People tell me I make them feel comfortable and peaceful.

I like seeing ideas as tangible as possible, so my writings are rich with illustrations. Personally, in the video I personally guide you through the illustrations. A picture is worth a thousand words, but I have color pages in front of you and follow my pointer as I explain the illustrations and elaborate on them along from your copy of the pages. The video from my camcorder is sufficient for the overall view.

Principles will be covered here which at first may seem too abstract to grasp. But as I continue through the first time and see if doesn't come together as I go along. I will be very consistent with the diagram pages until you read the stories of practical daily life. You may find a story that inspires you to be a more concentrated "quick reference" than a long thorough explanation. They will be important in your life. These pages are about getting things done important to you, not about being a scholar.

As I go through them next, instead of concentrating on them, you may just lightly touch down on them the first time. Also, it's good to sleep on what you've heard, and then come back for another look.

Ordered version: Ring binder with 23 8 1/2x11 720DPI photo inkjet quality pages, story pages, and VHS videotape. $150.00.

DEFINING A FEW WORDS

I'm going to be using the words "intelligence", "the ability to learn or understand", and "creative".

I want to make sure you know what I mean.

You may have been on a museum tour, the guide pointed at a painting and said, "This is DaVinci". You knew he meant the artist's creation and not the artist himself hanging on the wall. In the same way, if you heard, "there is intelligence in this painting", you would know he doesn't mean the painting has a conscious brain and mind.

The dictionary defines intelligence as "The ability to learn or understand; the capacity to use reason."

It defines creative as "Having or showing imagination and originality; inventive."

When I look at these three rocks, I call the first rock stupid, the second rock intelligent, and the third rock creative. Obviously there are no brains or minds inside these rocks. So why do I call a rock stupid? Because it is stupid to do a lot of using my head to collect all the needed materials, make all the mess, control, process, intent, or whatever you want to call it, knew to hold a crystal clear surface clear and smooth, with consistency of color, durability, and so on. I've seen many things and it ends up a mess. Only intelligent creativity does the job well. So, from the rock expresses intelligence and the ability to create. It's just there expressed.

I'll be the guide on a tour of Achievement Through Wholeness of Awareness. V instead of saying "It has that intelligence expressed in its presence, or, "It has that intelligence and the ability to create", then you will know what I mean.

Also when I say "life", I mean the universe and everything in it. I don't mean anything you believe or don't believe about an "after life", divine realms, non-duality, and "the hand you were dealt".

I'll use the word existence often. The root of the word existence is ex = out, Present; immediate. I don't mean merely someone's or something's survival through time.

START

THE FIRST STEP OF WHOLEN UNDERSTANDING THE PRINCIP

When what you know changes, you act on what you know, then, what you do changes. When what you do changes, you get different results in life. Wholeness of awareness makes you act differently to produce the results in life you're looking for.

There are facts in the universe that do not change; they are called principles. For example, the principle of addition is a fact that doesn't change. One plus one equals two; a million years ago or a million years from now, or a million miles away; one plus one equals two. All the different possible numbers use that principle without variation.* When you know the principle of addition, you simply use it and it gives you practical results to get the job of living done well.

Here I explain and validate the principle of one whole existence. Then later, show why when used, it gets you whatever you want. Here we go:

*How do we know there aren't two universes where a principle applies in one but not the other? - where the other guy in the other universe is out of luck? There would have to be something that organizes "two-ness" before two universes could exist. That "something" is the one all-pervasive universe. The two would only "seem" to be two from the guy who only sees so much of the universe. How much of it do you see right now? See? Principle is principle without variation.

LET'S CONSIDER WHAT ANY "TWO OR MORE" HAVE IN COMMON IN ORDER TO

Let's consider what these two balls have in common. If these balls have orange in common, and that's the source, I'd look to find a common source. Simple, right?

This is the one - the last thing that all things have in common. The source of any "two or more" is the principle of one whole existence.

Granted, existence is a very abstract thing. The abstractness of existence is more abstract than intelligence. Intelligence is more abstract than existence. Intelligence is commonality and the most inclusive, to be the most something, not nothing. If it wasn't something, it wouldn't be something. Any "something" should satisfy our criteria for existence.

The principle of one existence is the biggest fact. Only it is so close to us that it goes unrecognized as a fact. The good news is that because it's so close to us, it's the easiest to understand - if we know what we're looking for. Just like the principle of one existence is a fact open to good common sense to confirm and put to work. How can you put to work something as abstract as existence? Well, but first we need to examine existence a bit more.

THE HIGHEST AND BEST

One existence in common means one all-inclusive life. All-inclusiveness does not mean the best at all times and places. Why is completeness more than merely the sum total of the best; lack, loss, limitation, burden, obstruction, are all absence. Absence means no conclusion from a partial viewer. Less perception doesn't change what IS. Absence

If you could know all the details of what seemingly bad happened, you would see it beyond all imagination. Why? Because precision cannot be absent. The most precious is all-perceptive. Completeness is not a fact. That means nothing can be the very best does, means, and is. Regardless of perception, it is the tops intelligence, tops ability to create, tops structure. Why isn't the least precious also all-pervasive? Am I spinning? Do I feel good? We've all seen people who need to be proud of feeling good. But less than the light of light. This is a mechanical fact I will continue to clarify. Right in the midst of all the light and out good, making life at best neutral, is the exquisite very best. To confirm that life is top of time-space comparisons are all you have. If all you see of life is some little portion of time-space, that really wise? Would you evaluate your financial status by looking at one line of your credit card? Bad or worst always means something is missing, something is lacking, something is not complete. Bad here, we don't need anything good". Or, "No thanks, things are perfectly fine, we've got the best status of existence choosing to forget that highest and best is its own status. For the rest of right and whole. Why life needs to configure itself in such a way that it sees

*Does this mean that you should put up with the trouble of the world? Some philosophies or religions advise to suffer along, or that the world doesn't matter -- it's all futile.

WHY DOES LIFE NEED TO FORGET

Because completeness is the true nature of existence, there is no place to perceive greater without life forgetting into lesser first. Then, more is uncovered in steps of lesser to greater that get "filled" in. As it expands, life has no choice but to eventually rediscover that it's already "full-filled" in completeness.

This can be stated
in first person:

I don't become less, but I reverberate within myself to cancel out areas of perception. I look, conclude less, and act only on the basis of how much I see. Time-space is my tool to divide and hide myself; perceiving less than the all-best, whose status is always right here, right now. I can thereby expand my fulfillment until my full-filled status returns. That's how I make my all-best seem even better for me to go for. Through contrast, "don't want" gives even more charm and "go" power towards more. Yet even then, I'm at my best. I love to set myself up to get myself. I love myself so much that I want "others" to find out who and what I am. I'm the only one to get. I'm doing it right now reading these words. I always have and always will do this. At every moment, besides me there is no other.

Therefore, everyone has and everyone eventually will, see the complete universe and be fulfilled in it.

That makes the purpose of life to know itself through the expansion of fulfillment.

You seemingly reduce yourself in order to enjoy more and eventually the most; again and again without end. End requires "not here, not now" which is merely a time-space partial view's conclusion, not a fact.

You may say, "Sorry, but in so many years I'm going to be dead and it's not going to matter."

But continuity of life cannot be "absent" (life before birth / life after death)

Whatever details you believe or don't believe about before/after life are irrelevant before the completeness fact of existence.*

CHOICE ON THE BASIS

"If everything is the highest and best, why even bother trying to make things better? What's the point? If everything is the highest and best, why not cheat on my taxes, or run out and jump in bed with the next person I meet?" (The highest and best is so close to people that they miss it as their own nature to uphold their unique integrity. Their conclusion isolates themselves against life making life at best seemingly unresolved, and at worst, seemingly evil.)

Because life expands to fill itself in on who and you find yourself amidst expanding values of lesser To the best of your ability, you choose what is acceptable according to the unique pattern of your inner nature you shape progress along this line of expansion and get what end result. In a spot of expansion where you "only see so much" you conclude that something is not in your best interest. You will conclude your experience. You react to extricate yourself from it and that is What about eternal damnation and mortal sin? What about Jesus guide people of all levels of understanding, all the way from the childlike mind to highly advanced. The correct meaning of eternal is "always right now", not a very long time. When you're living in always right now for you from every angle; no way out. It could last a minute or a million years. The conscious choice to give yourself the opportunity to expand from lesser to greater. You knew you were in all kinds of trouble to extricate yourself from. You saw the whole picture of unspeakable glory. Mortality/death (short-lived aspects of your life) then seem like all there is. Sin, and salvation from represent one only begotten unchanging source of life that goes by many names. The Jesus Christ is helpful to externalize and personalize principle; even to the extent of creating enemies and fighting so they take it. Isolating life to the exclusion of the whole, and the result you're left to deal with is people enjoying their religion, or your own religion, even if others need to call you their enemy. You

But if he can't have his tea he gets angry or scared of living a life without tea. He feels absence inside. He sees that he has too much to lose. Maybe he'd rather die than to live without it.

He may blame a tea merchant or simply blame life itself.

A person serving his tea drives him crazy but he puts up with it just so he can drink his tea.*

He sees third-world children on T-V and feels guilty about sitting comfortably with his tea when they can't afford it. Then tea becomes a fad and unless he drinks ten cups a day he won't fit in. Maybe his god of tea will punish him or send him to hell.

All-present, All-good,
All-competent,
All-powerful.

Why is it so im

Here's the "kicker"

Now, "the kicker" is that under partial view, whatever conclusion you come to, you use your all of perception follows and then confirms it; "See I told you, the earth is flat". Conclusion is a creation of the universe; even if you can't see it, or refuse to accept it. You unknowingly create for yourself all the conditions you hold yourself back as far as getting the results you want from life. If circumstances hold you back, you have no authority to assign them power over you, and then it is so: "I'm a victim of circumstances". The world is what you see.

You act on the basis of your identity. Perceived absence will have you turn away opportunity; "I don't know" to know you're the very same one precious-majestic substance taking the form of "the way things are". You can override the obstacle". Then you "know better" to stand in your rightful place and go right on moving forward.

Therefore, act on principle regardless of perception's appearances. Commit yourself to stop acting on the content of your attention to intimately command your universe even though it seems like the most likely way is like you're acting out of touch with reality, but later, results will lead the way to confidence. Clarity is an estimate of yourself and the gain of fresh mastery of your universe. This is putting to work the all-inclusive substance.

Because less than the highest and best is merely a cover-up, your functionality, your ability to get things done, in addition, nothing can change it. Right where you are, you're the sole organizer of every detail in the universe. If it weren't for your intensely intimate functionality. You shouldn't be surprised that what I'm presenting to you was round, not flat. "But how can I be the sole creator of the universe while everyone else is too?"

Under full conclusion it's an all-inclusive indivisible whole regardless of partial view's division. The universe is all the living proof you could want that you're not all-powerful, all-good, all-wise, all competent? The cover-up is done. The cover-up is done the cover-up is? It has to be airtight perfect or else you wouldn't buy into your expansion. The time could well be the time you've chosen to end your cover-up.

*The one substance doesn't become less than itself even when it reverberates within itself to become these four things.

THE PROOF

On the previous page I mentioned "the kicker"; that the field of perception proof you could want about "the way things are". That proof you accept part of you that you don't see which gets everything done.* In this

"OK then, I'd like a check for ten-thousand dollars delivered in my mailbox today."

To inspire yourself to act different, first bring to mind the best "sense" of what you understand about complete singular personage. Review the pages that inspire you the most. You might speak the words, "Singular personage integrity IS". And if necessary, the stream of logic that lead to it. Take a moment to settle into this full concept of yourself. Now speak that status: "My ten-thousand dollars is delivered here today in the mailbox". Which ever seems most natural to you, speak the words out loud, whisper them, think the words inside, or just hold a sense of it.

If you're new at this, almost certainly you're going to feel inappropriate, absurd, or downright outrageous to expect results from mere words. "If such a thing works, how come everyone else isn't doing it?" "I've got to be out of my mind to do this."

Here is your test to see how you're underestimating the cover up. Ask yourself, "Am I underestimating how intimate this whole cover up is? Isn't my conclusion in terms of 'not here, not now' absence? Isn't that a partial viewer's conclusion which has nothing to do with anything except not seeing? THE FURTHEST EXTENT

There is a physical model to help understand the all-pervasive, all-inclusive, indivisible nature of existence. You have already seen in one form or another. Fill a large cooking pan with water. Slowly rock it back and forth and watch the variety of ripples. They bounce all around, hit each other causing smaller waves, and even sometimes cancel each other out. The patterns are unique and endless. Yet it is one solid body of water never removing anything from itself nor becoming less than itself in order to become different within itself. This is how the indivisible field of existence reverberates within itself to produce all the phenomena of the universe. Perception is canceled out and you call yourself someone who "doesn't know".

The pan is a good analogy but it's not the furthest extent of what wholeness means, and definitely not a model to act on.

Here is why. The illustration below shows waves emanating out. As they move out, they become weaker and more vulnerable to distortion. Let's say you want to receive that million-dollar check in the mailbox. "What if it's not appropriate? What if it takes too long to get? What if I take away from someone else who deserves it more? I mean, maybe these factors were canceled out or reduced by how completeness reverberates." Not so. This is where the analogy breaks down because all analogies deal with comparisons, and comparisons deal with time space relationships. Time-space requires the false reductive conclusion of a partial viewer as its basis. Truly, appropriateness is. Immediacy is. Competence is. Deserving is. They don't reduce. They are complete at all times and places the same whether you have an analogy or not.

That one substance doesn't become less than itself just because it moves. When you move as "your way", all of existence and everything it means, moves.

THE OPTION OF LEAST EFFORT

Instead of contemplating all the principles, exercising and testing your understanding with verbal command, or some form of holding your intent, you can just sit comfortably, not attempting anything which might be above your skill, not evaluating anything, just being whatever you are after all is said and done. Let that be your way of getting results. Now that should sound good to you. You know you can do that. In fact you know you're already good at that. It's perfect for a person convinced he's not clear enough to master putting wholeness of awareness to work for him.

You'll neither be sitting there like a helpless victim that has to "put up with" your dullness, nor will you be trying to remedy it through reactive efforts. Both of these would be turning away the opportunity of least effort. Instead you'll be poised "as planned" for your return.

Completeness means that along with everything that exists, available for you to use if you will: "Having results". The intention of having to do absolutely nothing whereby, is a command just like any other command of you unseen - just as easily. Content (in the proof) regardless of content's nature or scale. This is a verity that takes advantage of the furthest extent of efficiency.

This is especially relevant in two instances. One, is the "cardboard mind" who finds it difficult to concentrate. If demands on your life insist you keep busy or come up with "don't have time for this stuff". You can let either of these whereby for your ideal fresh return. Now you're ready for "way things are". Let them have you completely if that is your way of results to get your dreams. Does that sound like Completeness means everything too good to be true is not for use. Only if you don't know about it, you won't use it. Only if you're concerned you don't have what it takes, means you don't use it. That's all the part of you unseen needs to take and use. Now you know you don't intend to even lift a finger for results. That's a command. Good deal?

Now you have no excuse to say that putting existence to work. You now have a plan of action without action. This option is because you're always the master of the universe. You're not.

If you have a headache, your stomach hurts, you're tired, let that be your complete means-whereby to acquire results. Let that be your amputated arm, let that be your way of results to be a complete.

Do you know of anyone bold, daring, and presumptuous who uses as the way of results for their dreams to come true? No. They keep themselves busy? I sure don't. It's utterly out of the realm of conventional wisdom. But you can't ignore the simple fact that the container you call "you". Because existence is all-in-one, the ability to get all results is resident in you and at your disposal. The thought the earth was flat didn't allow themselves to move out on the continents; they were scared they'd fall off the edge of the earth. Everyone on this planet doesn't know there is a complete existence. They would move out on called complete existence. They would use the option of least effort to the test.

The next time you're standing in line and have no choice but to be applying "having to stand in line" as your way of results to your return is. You'll neither stand there like a helpless victim nor will you try to get out of the unideal situation by reacting. You know what existence makes available, standing there for your return. Both the people standing in back and in front of you. The earth is flat while you're sailing out to put the nature of existence to the test.

WHY HANDLING EXTREME BONDAGE IS THE OPTION OF LEAST EFFORT; A

A higher expectation from life can bring less satisfaction with "the way things are". When you see what you've been missing out on, suddenly what was, "I'm grateful for what I have". A mountain range of limitation that was before, by conventional wisdom, a good and normal life because your life was more comfortable not seeking better. This will almost certainly arise when you seem stuck when you can't appreciate your expansion. You may even feel sick to your stomach characterized by seeing "no way out" with the present time and resources. When you're stuck, it will work. If you knew what to do, it wouldn't be extreme bondage. Extrication from

Why not make it pay?

"I'm going to put to work the very same mechanics that are holding me back."

What's considered a rock? Ask yourself: "If I had a choice, would I have it come?" If not, then include it "as planned" to work for you.

Very extreme bondage wipes out your ability to think. Your body is gripped with overpowering sensations. This could be pain, tiredness, or spontaneous movement of organs and muscles.

In such a case, let your attention be natural sensation. Feel it easily and innocently. Feel you. In the most severe case, you'll need to

ALWAYS PUT THE H

A doctor will say you achieve because you eat well and get good exercise. That you're here because of the survival instinct.

A pundit will say you achieve because you have good ideas. That you're here because of the learning instinct.

A psychologist will say you achieve because you had no serious childhood traumas. That you're here to acquire self-actualization.

A scientist will say you achieve because natural selection refined your ability to interact with your environment. That you're here because of random accidents.

A priest will say you achieve because of the grace of God, or because your not violating God's laws. That you're here because of what happened in the Garden of Eden.

All of these statements have their own merit and utility for various spots of expansion of fulfillment. The only way to complete a truth they are. The most complete should always be put first. Why? Because it follows what you do, and what you do always know. Your achievement can be no more powerful than what you know about life. The smaller the truth required to produce results. The most complete truth is nothing to accomplish everything. You would then know nothing.

It may seem people are lucky or unfortunate regardless of what they know because this is the way they "know" life works. Even the most complete truth. The principle of singular personage keeps the mechanics of life simple.

THE MOST COMPLETE TRUTH

The most complete truth is that life is one equal solid existence. That it never changes itself. This is the first principle of life; the first and biggest law of the nature of personage and its functionality are unreducible and complete. Your achievement is now "of achievement" is only due to localized perception in time-space. You know. Complete means there's no place to expand without first seeming to forge new perceptions of why you're here and why you achieve. They all guide you from 1 to 10. You need to continue with lesser truths that are best guiding your achievement. You supplement and replace them with the most complete knowledge of your function. To integrate it is reason in itself to act. Adversity, even though unwelcome, is always the test. That will do fine if it's all you have. Wisdom would have putting the truth in front of you'll do fine to ignore and reject everything I say. Life will continue to be what it is. Great stability and resolve will be gained if you trace every detail you know back to solid ground. You won't have to believe in anything; you can just know the truth.

YOU'VE DONE IT ALL BEFORE

Any kind of absence is not completeness.

You've already done everything innumerable times, along with every possible variation of everything; even every little bacteria on your hand has done it all equally one big deal. The complete you that you are, loves your perfection so much that

The stage setting of infinity means that time is unending in both directions. Space goes enough time and space to handle all the possibilities which have and will exist. This infinity called upon to exist in time-space. Every possible combination is needed. If not, there would be when those things are all used up. If there's no end to time-space, there can't be an end to an understandable conclusion by a partial observer positioned in time space.

Everyone has read this sheet and heard my explanation innumerable times under every circumstance. I have been in theirs looking at this sheet. Each tiniest molecular change that could occur in any circumstance. The scale for every possible variation is truly mind-boggling.

But doesn't an end "exist" too? "End" is a reduction. Reductions exist only as a mistake for a partial viewer with a reduction that's true exist? The direction such questions continue until Because everything exists, the possibility that I'm deluded about the principle of existence. A delusion requires an "only seeing so much" conclusion. If standing with principle shows I've risen above the vulnerable "only seeing so much" conclusion. We rise above delusion by understanding. Since everything exists, all the living proof you could want that everything doesn't exist is experience, so we know that "thing" is out and active in time space view right now.

Wholeness of awareness, even if not yet fully integrated into your life, but

If you ever feel overwhelmed by something your trying to do, or feel what you want to do, the principle to mind that everything exists will have a settling effect. "I did to before without losing, bring to mind that loss is not a fact; you can only gain. Then just go right on "a preciousness a million fold and you haven't begun to touch its range. A range you have already now exists and is awaiting acceptance. Knowing this takes the bite out of seeing something

BEHIND

Before you agree, as many do, that God is someone who should make you feel intimidated by the supreme all-mighty innumerable times. In that position you experienced all there was of everything all at once and did something about it all at once. What could stretch our imagination? I agree, if you agree that reduction is not a fact, that you ARE that right now and you are DONE with conclusions which prove where you are on the "less to more" linear expansion of fulfillment
